The prior arts fail to teach or fairly suggest a multi-layer random access memory comprising a first conductive trace for generating a first magnetic field in response to a current applied to the first conductive trace, a second conductive trace for generating a second magnetic field in response to a current applied to the second conductive trace a third conductive trace for generating a third magnetic field in response to a current applied to the third conductive trace, a first magnetic storage element operatively positioned between the first and second conductive traces, wherein the first magnetic storage element is adapted to store a bit of data as an orientation of magnetization and rotate the orientation of magnetization in response to the first and second magnetic fields, and a second magnetic storage element operatively positioned between the second and third conductive traces, wherein the second magnetic storage element is adapted to store a bit of data as an orientation of magnetization and rotate the orientation of magnetization in response to the second and third magnetic fields.
